

To access our library databases, log on to <https://my.uopeople.edu/>

You can use the Online Campus link <https://my.uopeople.edu/login/index.php>

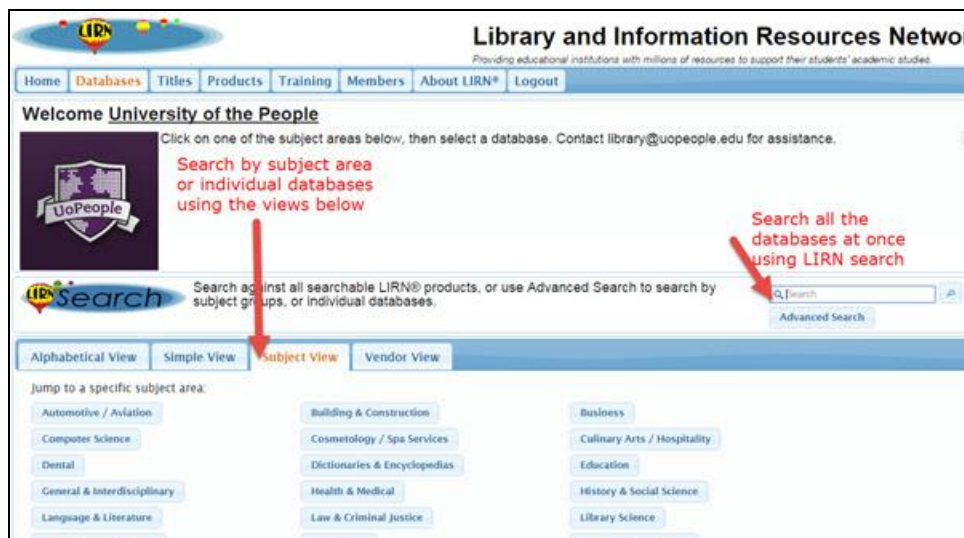

Once you have logged in with your username and password, you will see a list of resources including the Library and Information Resource Network (LIRN) and JSTOR on the left side of the screen. You will need to search these two resources separately.

LIBRARY AND INFORMATION RESOURCE NETWORK (LIRN)

To use the Library and Information Resource Network (LIRN), use the link on the left side of the screen that says "Access to Library and Information Resource Network." That will get you in... and then ignore all the buttons near the very top of the screen! Use the links BELOW the UoPeople logo.

Remember - Important! Ignore the buttons near the very the top of the screen! Look below the UoPeople logo to get started.

Tip: The LIRN databases index some resources that are not available online full-text via our subscriptions. We've set the default to "full text", but any time you can limit your search results to full text, be sure to do that!

JSTOR

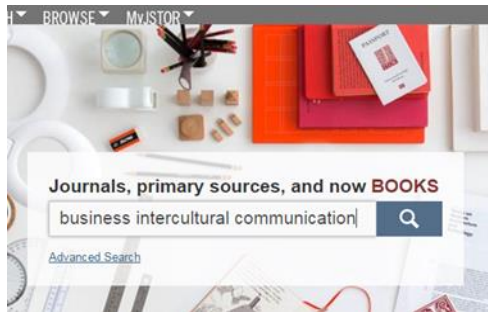

JSTOR has donated access to three areas of the full text of important academic journals:

Health & General Sciences
 Mathematics & Statistics
 Business & Economics

Depending on how you enter the UoPeople site, you may see one more image to click to have access to JSTOR.

Here's an example of a search for articles on intercultural communication in business:

Search results screen:

A screenshot of the JSTOR search results screen. At the top, there are navigation links for 'JSTOR HOME', 'SEARCH', 'BROWSE', and 'MyJSTOR'. Below this is a search bar with the text 'business intercultural communication' and a 'Search' button. To the right of the search bar are links for 'Modify Search' and 'Search Help'. Below the search bar, there is a section for 'Search within results' with dropdown menus for 'Content Type' (All Types), 'Access Options' (Can Access), 'Sort By' (Relevance), and 'Export Selected Citations'. Below this, there are two search results. The first result is 'An Intercultural Communication Model for Use in Global Interorganizational Networks' by David A. Griffith and Michael G. Harvey, published in the Journal of International Marketing, Vol. 9, No. 3 (2001), pp. 87-103. The abstract text is partially visible: '... intercultural communication efforts focused on developing relationships. The authors integrate the complexities of cultural influences (i.e., national and organizational) into an intercultural communication model that is aimed to enhance the understanding of the development of relationship quality. The model devel...'. To the right of the first result are three buttons: 'Download PDF', 'Add To My Lists', and 'Cite This Item'. The second result is 'When in Rome? The Effects of Cultural Adaptation on Intercultural Business Negotiations', with a 'Download PDF' button to its right.

When you download a PDF, you will be asked to accept JSTOR's terms and conditions via a pop-up screen.

What about accessing other subject areas in JSTOR?

Individual Access

To access other subject areas in JSTOR not available through UoPeople, you may want to sign up for individual access. See <http://about.jstor.org/individuals> This program allows individual users to have online access (i.e. no downloads!) for access to 3 articles every 2 weeks.

Since use of an individual JSTOR account is metered, try using other tools such as Google Scholar to identify articles.

Example: Use Google Scholar to identify articles in JSTOR on Ernest Hemingway’s novel Old Man and the Sea.

Go to <https://scholar.google.com> and search
